Davis UWC Scholars

The 2023 Report of the Davis UWC Scholars Program

“I’m trying to stimulate leaders of the future to make a difference through the grounding in education that I’m helping to give them. When I started my business career, I took my own history lesson from Princeton: I learned how leaders make a difference, in their countries, in their centuries. So I invested in leaders, and that investment helped me to be successful. . . .I’m looking to invest again in leaders of the future.”

SHELBY M. C. DAVIS
Co-founder and Philanthropist

“We strive to build critical masses of globally minded young men and women on American campuses, to foster highly personal relationships between outstanding Americans and non-Americans, and to seed global networks. These networks can serve a higher calling of international understanding and common purpose among future leaders in all walks of life in our world.”

UNITING THE WORLD

Why the Davis United World College Scholars Program?

From its inception in 2000, the Davis United World College Scholars Program has been guided by two key strategies. First, to fund heretofore unavailable need-based scholarship support at American colleges and universities for graduates of the United World College (UWC) schools. And second, to help transform American campuses into more diverse global communities in the belief that all students, faculty, and staff will have more valuable educational experiences by living with and learning from those who are different from themselves.

These two strategies inform the five principal goals of our program:

- » provide scholarship support for exemplary and promising students from a wide range of countries and cultures who have adopted the passion and mission of building international understanding through their educations at the worldwide UWC schools;
- » build meaningful cohorts of these globally and culturally aware scholars amidst the undergraduate populations of selected partner colleges and universities across the U.S.;

- » strengthen the American undergraduate experience through international diversity on U.S. campuses—as much for the large majority of traditional American students as for the UWC scholars;
- » leverage the value of this philanthropic initiative for the long-term benefit of all on partner campuses, to contribute to strategic shifts in institutional thinking, and to incentivize others by our example to bring even greater resources to this effort;
- » contribute proactively to a better future for our highly volatile and interdependent world by motivating our scholars and those with whom they interact to take personal responsibility for making a positive difference around the globe.

Our program is at once practical and aspirational. It reflects the huge potential of private philanthropy to promote international understanding in dynamic and expanding ways through partner educational institutions that share our strategic vision and are committed to building greater opportunities for global learning for all their students. In essence, our program is about using philanthropic leadership to leverage increasing support for transformative impact on individuals, institutions, and the wider world.

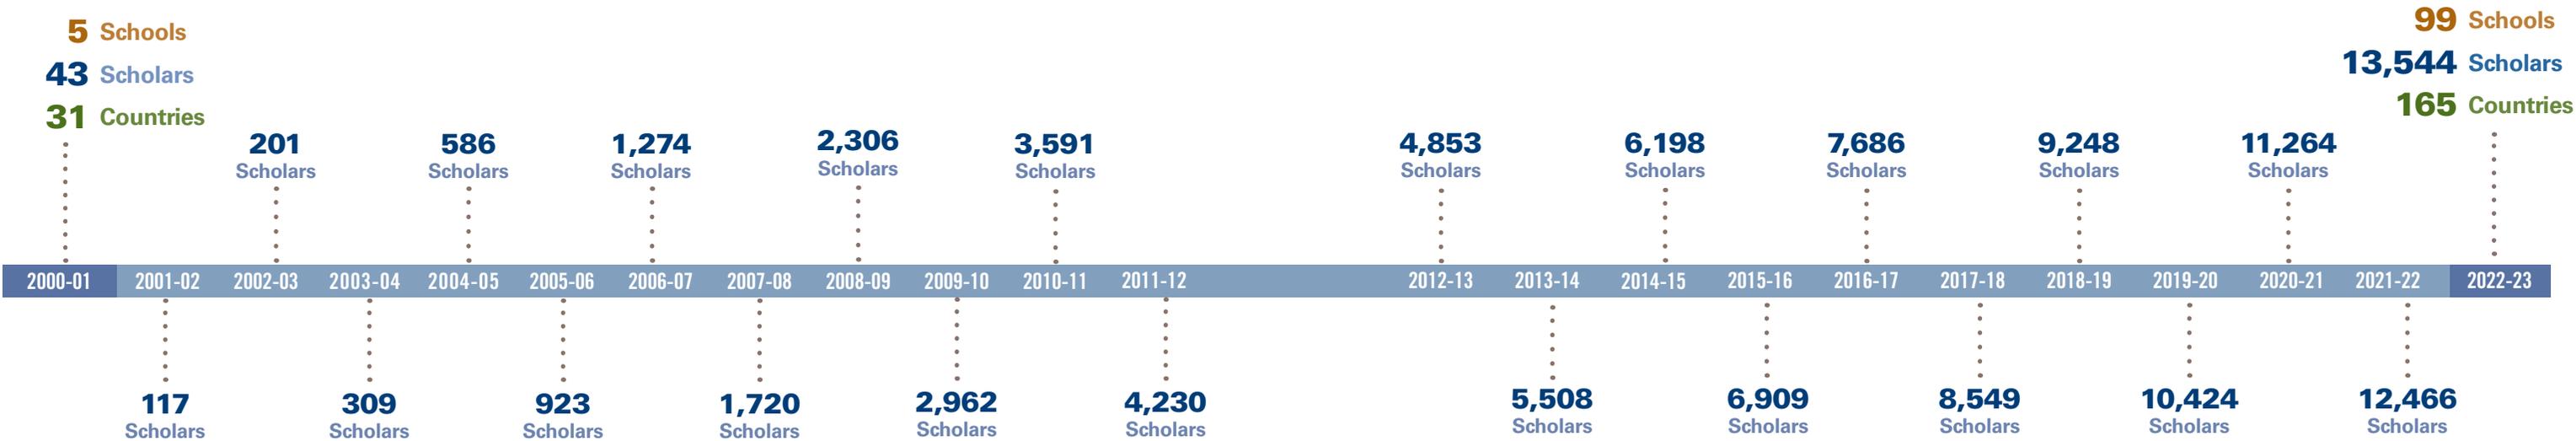

Our program has grown immensely in both numbers and impact: there are now 3,982 scholars at 99 American college and university partner campuses; they are graduates of all 18 United World College schools and come from 165 home countries. Our program and all our scholars are distinguished by the UWC movement's unique selection process—its worldwide voluntary “national committees” which promote and select the most promising youngsters from their countries to gain scholarships and opportunities, first by completing their secondary education at UWC schools and then at a wide choice of higher education at our U.S. college and university partners.

Our program would not be possible without our partnerships with the many American colleges and universities which value the UWC mission and its graduates. Essential to these partnerships are their campus liaisons who are listed by their home school at the back of this annual report.

We extend our ongoing gratitude to all who contribute their expertise and efforts to helping the Davis UWC Scholars Program realize its goals.

Twenty-Three Years of Program Growth

How This Works

Since 1962, thousands of young people from 175 nations have been selected by committees in their home countries to complete their last two years of high school at one of 18 United World College schools. UWC schools are located in Armenia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Canada, China, Costa Rica, Eswatini, Germany, Hong Kong, India, Italy, Japan, Norway, Singapore, Tanzania, Thailand, the Netherlands, Wales, and the United States. The UWC movement works to build multinational, cross-cultural communication and understanding among all its students.

In 2000, the Davis UWC Scholars Program began providing scholarship grants to a pilot group of American colleges and universities to support UWC graduates who matriculated at these schools. These pilot schools — Colby College, College of the Atlantic, Middlebury College, Princeton University, and Wellesley College — are graduating their 20th class of Davis UWC Scholars in 2023. Based on the success of building clusters of globally minded scholars at these pilot schools, Davis philanthropy chose to greatly expand the number of campuses and scholars in the program.

This academic year, there are 99 U.S. colleges and universities in partnership with the Davis UWC Scholars Program. For partner schools, the program provides annual grants in support of need-based scholarships for each matriculated UWC graduate for up to four years of undergraduate study. The total number of Davis UWC Scholars attending these schools has now reached 3,982 from 165 countries. The 2023 graduating class includes 971 students from 137 nations. To date, the program has supported 13,544 scholars.

With their education made possible through their own merits and the help of the Davis UWC Scholars Program and its partner schools, Davis UWC Scholars will go on to play important, meaningful, and often leadership roles in their communities, in their home countries, and in the world. The partner schools will have become more globally engaged and more internationally diverse educational communities.

Davis UWC Scholars by Class Year*

Where the Scholars Come From

The Davis United World College (UWC) Scholars are graduates of a family of worldwide schools that share a mission of making education a force to unite people, nations, and cultures for peace and a sustainable future. The UWC movement was founded in 1962 and now comprises a network of 18 international schools on four continents, short courses and a system of volunteer-run National Committees in more than 155 countries.

UWC offers a challenging education to an intentionally diverse group of students, placing high value on experiential learning, community service and outdoor activities, and complementing high academic standards delivered through the International Baccalaureate Diploma Program (DP) and Career-related Program (CP).

Today, more than 11,000 students from over 155 countries are studying on the UWC campuses. Admission to a UWC school is independent of socioeconomic means, with over 80 percent of UWC National Committee-selected students in the International Baccalaureate DP or CP receiving full or partial financial support.

Graduates of the UWCs are eligible to become Davis UWC Scholars at nearly a hundred college and university campuses throughout the U.S.

The UWC Schools

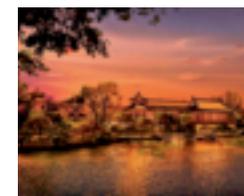

UWC Adriatic, founded in 1982 near Trieste, was the first UWC outside the English-speaking world. The school's buildings and residences are spread throughout the Italian-Slovene village of Duino. All students study Italian, and participate in a social-service program with the local community.

UWC Atlantic College, the first UWC, was founded in 1962 in the 12th-century St. Donat's Castle on the south Wales coastline. The college places a strong focus on community service with a wide range of opportunities open to students.

UWC Costa Rica, near the capital San Jose, is UWC's only bilingual school, teaching the IB in English and Spanish. It became a UWC in 2006, and its approach is built on peace, environment, and multiculturalism.

UWC Changshu China opened in 2015 and offers a two-year IB diploma program as well as a one-year pre-IB preparatory program. Changshu is located in Yangtze Delta, in the Suzhou metropolitan area. The vision of the first campus in mainland China is to become a sustainable village dedicated to the fostering of peace and international understanding.

UWC Dilijan opened in 2014, with generous funding from the RVVF Foundation. The campus is set on 88 acres of land backing onto a beautiful national park. The educational program is diverse and engages with both the expansive setting and the local community. The college builds upon the movement's legacy of engaging with postconflict zones to create dialogue and a peaceful future.

UWC East Africa was established in 1969 in Moshi Kilimanjaro as International School Moshi (ISM) and opened a second campus in Arusha in 1987. In August 2019, it welcomed its first cohort of UWC students as the second UWC school on the African continent. It is the oldest school in Africa to offer the International Baccalaureate Diploma Program (IBDP). Located in the mountainous northeast of Tanzania, the school offers unique outdoor experiences that train the students in teamwork and leadership skills.

UWC ISAK Japan opened in 2014 and became a UWC in 2017. The school was founded by an alumna of Pearson College. It offers an innovative leadership program focused on entrepreneurial skills and design thinking. Students explore Japanese culture, history, and traditions, and are encouraged to study Japanese language.

Li Po Chun UWC of Hong Kong, founded in 1992, emphasizes the Chinese traditions of proper conduct, practical wisdom, appropriate social relationships, and respect for academic learning. Li Po Chun has developed strong links with various parts of the country, especially for service activities.

UWC Maastricht was founded in 2009 in the Netherlands as a K-12 school, and the students graduate with either an IB Diploma or an CP Career-related certificate.

UWC Mahindra College, founded in 1997, is in a rural area of the western Ghats near Pune. The school has dedicated much of its land to a biodiversity park and conservation reserve, which is a study resource for all local schools and colleges. Mahindra also supports local schools with its educational program, Akshara, and community-service projects.

UWC in Mostar, founded in 2006, is the first UWC with the explicit aim of contributing to the reconstruction of a postconflict society, in this case Bosnia and Herzegovina. A diversity of students from the country, the region, and abroad live, study, and volunteer together in the community, offering the host nation a working example of integrated education.

Pearson College UWC was founded in 1974 on Vancouver Island in British Columbia, Canada. The floating marine-sciences center contains a well-equipped seafront environmental-systems lab, and students conduct research above and below water at nearby Race Rocks, an ecological reserve managed by the college.

UWC Red Cross Nordic opened in 1995 in Flekke, Fjaler municipality in western Norway. Both regional and Red Cross traditions are reflected in the school's emphasis on Nordic studies and humanitarian and environmental concerns. Cooperation with the Red Cross creates service opportunities in areas such as first aid, lifesaving, youth training, and humanitarian action.

UWC Robert Bosch College opened in 2014 in Germany. Built thanks to the generosity of the Robert Bosch Foundation, the campus is a former Carthusian monastery in Freiburg. Recognized as a "green city," it's suited to the college's emphasis on environmental sustainability and how technology can be used and developed to build a peaceful and sustainable future.

UWC South East Asia, founded in 1971, is the largest UWC school, with about 5,389 students ages 4–18 at two campuses in Singapore at full capacity. The school's global-concerns program introduces concepts in leadership and organization, and all students are encouraged to develop their own initiatives along with doing community service.

UWC Thailand is situated in northern Phuket, Thailand. Representing 99 different nationalities and boasting the full IB continuum across the PYP, MYP and DP, UWC

Thailand serves over 500 students from age 2 to grade 12. With a unique focus on well-being, students seek to realize their highest human potential, cultivate genuine happiness, and take mindful and compassionate action, all while engaging in unparalleled outdoor experiential education opportunities and community-based service partnerships. With a campus nestled at the foothills of a beautiful national park and within a traditional Thai village, ecological and cultural connections abound as students live the UWC experience of a lifetime.

UWC-USA was founded in 1982 on the site of historic Montezuma Castle near Las Vegas, New Mexico. Programs emphasize community engagement, wilderness experience, service, and Southwest studies. Students also study intercultural communication and mediation through the Constructive Engagement of Conflict (CEC) and global-issues programs.

Waterford Kamhlaba UWCSA became a UWC in 1981 and educates students ages 11–18. Just outside Mbabane, the capital of Eswatini, the UWC is a pan-African institution with a global outlook. Students and staff are committed to understanding and addressing the complex challenges facing Africa and the rest of the world.

The Davis Cup presented to the University of Oklahoma

University of Oklahoma Wins Ninth Davis Cup

The University of Oklahoma (OU) has earned the Davis Cup for the ninth time. The honor is awarded annually to the Davis UWC Scholars Program partner that enrolls the largest cohort of Davis Scholars. The class of 2026 has enrolled 79 scholars, and OU now has a total of 304 scholars representing 109 countries.

OU has a deep-seated and long-standing commitment to the Davis UWC Scholars Program, in part because of the many ways in which Davis Scholars benefit the campus. OU President Joseph Harroz Jr. noted, “Davis Scholars are leaders and change-makers with the talent and motivation to make our world a better place. That’s precisely what they do during their time at OU by leaving a meaningful and lasting impact that benefits our entire university community.”

Across the various partner institutions, Davis Scholars have above-average representation in campus leadership positions, a trend that is evident at OU as well. Davis Scholars at OU are team leaders at the Ronnie K. Irani Center for the Creation of Economic Wealth, serve as executive officers on the International Advisory Committee, and are resident advisers.

OU has been so successful at recruiting Davis Scholars in no small part due to the incredible support that they offer students once they arrive on campus. “Being an international student is by no means easy, and having that second family on campus has made it much easier for me,” commented Azra Fifić, a Davis UWC Scholar from Bosnia and Herzegovina and graduate assistant in the Department of Interior Design. “Their encouragement has helped me grow and succeed in ways I couldn’t imagine before arriving to OU. All of us are truly grateful to have such a special place and program on our campus.”

The trip to Norman, Oklahoma to present the Davis Cup has become somewhat of an annual tradition for Davis UWC Scholars Program co-founder and executive director Phil Geier, a visit he very much looks forward to. Dr. Geier and philanthropist and program co-founder Shelby Davis greatly appreciate the partnership that has blossomed over the years, noting that “OU’s commitment has been exemplary and has set the highest standard for partnerships within the program.”

Davis Philanthropy Mobilizes a Global Team

Built on the assumption that education creates opportunity, Davis philanthropy focuses on grants at both the secondary and higher educational levels. All grants are in support of need-based scholarships at both the worldwide UWC schools and the nearly 100 American colleges and universities that partner with the Davis UWC Scholars Program.

The extensive global team that makes all of this possible begins with UWC voluntary committees located in over 160 countries, which select motivated and promising teenagers. Those students from each country that earn admissions to UWC schools are able to learn from world-class faculty and staff who continue the teamwork through their distinctive mission of peace through education. The UWC team effort is topped off with professional university counselors guiding student choices for higher education. The team further expands to committed educators at the many eligible colleges and universities throughout the U.S. that successfully matriculate UWC graduates for their undergraduate degrees.

Vital to this continuum of educational opportunities and its widespread global team is Davis philanthropy—made possible by the generosity of philanthropist Shelby Davis and guided by veteran international educator Phil Geier, the co-founders in 2000 of the Davis UWC Scholars Program in 2000 and who have remained its leaders ever since. Key to the program's administration located at its Middlebury College headquarters are Executive Assistant, Lisa Viau; Digital Media Coordinator, Devin McGrath-Conwell, and the valuable expertise of numerous Middlebury colleagues. And joining our headquarters team this year to foster further growth and impact is Director of Partnerships and Innovation, Jacob Mnookin. This widespread global team is dedicated to transforming individuals and institutions who are elevated and motivated by the UWC mission. We are grateful to everyone who represents this team.

PHILANTHROPISTS HONOR ROLL

The Davis UWC Scholars Program combines the transformational philanthropy of the Davis family with donations from many others to our partner colleges and universities. Given this financial partnership, we are pleased to recognize their generous support for today's scholars and tomorrow's leaders. Each partner school was invited to submit the names of those they would like listed in this report along with the Davises. This effort at donor recognition only scratches the surface of the many who give to their alma maters in support of the financial aid awarded to our scholars. We are grateful to those who are contributing to their schools in this way, and look forward to the continuing growth of this honor roll in the years ahead.

This recognition is arranged by partner school with the information they provided. It captures the growing number of philanthropists captivated by the value of supporting our scholars — and theirs — by investing at their chosen college or university. Some have given to annual funds, indicating their interest in the Davis UWC Scholars Program. Others have given larger amounts ($10,000 or more) toward their alma mater's portion of a scholar's total financial-aid package and have been assigned scholars, sharing naming opportunities with the Davises. A few have given major endowments in support of international scholarships assigned to Davis UWC Scholars and share naming opportunities with the Davises each year. At the heart of the Davis UWC Scholars Program is “giving back,” a trait we strive to see manifested over time in our scholars as they make their way in the world.

Harnessing Data for Community Development

As a data analyst intern for Destination Medical Center, a public-private economic development initiative that is the largest such effort in Minnesota, Ratanak Uddam (Cambodia, UWC Thailand, Luther College '23) worked this year to help make Rochester, Minnesota, home of the Mayo Clinic, even more of a global health-care hub and destination.

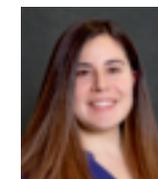

Uddam built a data search process to find and recommend companies likely to be interested in moving to or expanding in Rochester. The work, he says, “stimulates me because it allows me to visualize data essential to Rochester’s growth,” with “valuable information that could be used to secure long-term investments in the city.”

Uddam secured his internship through Luther’s Rochester Semester program, through which students can study and work in the city. “This opportunity has certainly opened me up to all the different applications of data science that I never would have thought possible,” he says. “I am interested in extending this work to different industries as I plan for my career after college.”

Uddam credits his UWC experience for steering him toward this path. “My contribution to a major catalyst that works on transforming the city of Rochester into a more developed, inclusive and sustainable community is only possible through the core values I have developed during my time at UWC,” he observes. “I am hoping to continue carrying on this mission in all my future endeavors.”

Helping African Farmers Grow Climate Resilience

After graduating from Bates College, Bantu Mabaso '18 (Eswatini, Waterford Kamhlaba UWCSA) founded Phalala Youth Empowerment for Food Security, an enterprise in Eswatini (formerly Swaziland) that continues to train smallholder farmers in climate-smart agriculture, and has supported farmers' associations in developing climate-resilient agribusinesses.

After three years running Phalala, Bantu earned a master's degree in environmental sustainability last November as a Chevening Scholar at the University of Edinburgh. Her dissertation explored how to effectively assess the impacts of climate change on smallholder farm systems — and she worked on developing a Farm Resilience Assessment Scorecard, aimed at supporting Malawi's National Resilience Strategy.

As an advisor to Phalala today, Bantu says, "My main responsibility now is to advise on strategies to help replicate the organization's model in other rural communities that also face climate-change-induced food insecurity." She also helps the group develop the funding it needs to expand into more communities.

Beyond the organization she founded, Bantu says, "I am currently looking for a role that will allow me to contribute towards effecting change through creating policies that support smallholder farmers in building resilient and sustainable agricultural systems that provide healthy, safe, affordable and nutritious food supplies for communities.

"I think taking this step will help me gain the experience I will need to become a subject-matter expert in promoting cooperation between different public and private stakeholders, and supporting them in prioritizing environmental outcomes alongside financial returns to meet aspirations for sustainable agriculture. That is my plan for the future."

A Passion to Share the Culture of Cycling

Nynke Ham '23 (Netherlands, UWC Red Cross Nordic) came to College of the Atlantic planning to study physics and math — but then took a class on the history, science and policy of the bicycle. Nynke joined the college's Bike Subcommittee and started a "Fix a Bike" program, which repairs abandoned bicycles and gives them to students who need them.

Nynke earned a paid internship with the Winter Cycling Federation in Oulu, Norway, beginning in January. Their senior project is designing a multiuse trail system for COA's home town of Bar Harbor, Maine, so more high schoolers can ride to school.

"A good cycling culture can only exist in places with community trust," they note. "You have to trust that strangers with more powerful vehicles will stop for you. When cycling efforts fail, it is often because of complex historical issues, that for example led to low-density housing with more personal space than communal space, or general segregation and a lack of trust."

It's easy to imagine Nynke riding a costly carbon-fiber cycle — but, they say, "I've got a 25-year-old 10-speed that is purely functional. For me, it's more about freedom and adventure." Nynke hopes next year to bike along the U.S. Pacific coast and from the Netherlands to Finland, and even in Vietnam. "This slower form of transportation will give me the chance to understand the local cycling cultures, and raise money for World Bicycle Relief."

Bringing New Clarity to the Immigration Process

Amélie-Sophie Vavrosky (Austria, UWC-USA, Brown University '18) is the founder and CEO of Formally, a legal tech startup that uses accessible design to streamline and simplify immigration applications. She is also a dual-degree grad student at Stanford, in sustainable design and tech and cyber policy — and she is the former lead graduate researcher at Stanford's Digital Civil Society lab, where her work focused on human rights.

Amélie and her team built Formally to address two problems in immigration: the lack of legal representation and the low success rates of self-represented applications. Its software allows users to easily find, hire, and work with attorneys; it also translates legalese into English and nine other languages as it guides users through the immigration process, filling out forms as they go. Brown says the startup's "innovative software has been celebrated for its accessibility, security, and thoughtful data privacy practices."

"Our goal is to make legal and immigration processes more transparent and accessible," writes Amélie, who earned degrees at Brown in Middle East studies and international relations. "The legal industry desperately needs fresh perspectives that can see not just how things are but how they could be.

"I am fascinated with the intersection of law, policy, and technology, and believe that policy issues like regulating automated decision making will present one of the largest challenges of our time. We know that algorithmic bias is deeply embedded into AI systems, and that their proliferation may perpetuate and exacerbate existing systems of oppression.

"Fundamentally, we're creating a platform designed to empower people with their data through technology."

Working for Healing in the Justice System

At UWC-USA, Isabella Larsen (USA, Duke University '23) became the leader of an experiential education group that made weekly peer-mentoring visits to a youth detention center. In the process, she writes, "I developed a deep interest in solving the systemic issues surrounding incarceration in the United States."

That interest has gone even deeper at Duke. A psychology and public-policy double major, Isabella has interned with the Durham County Criminal Justice Resource Center, where she presented her findings to a committee of Town Council members, criminal-justice advocates and lawyers.

She joined "Mental Health and the Justice System in Durham County," a Duke team whose work informs community organizations involved with the justice system as they seek to make systemic change. And she worked this year on co-authoring three research publications about recidivism and access to the mental-health system for "justice-involved individuals."

A trumpeter in the Duke University Wind Symphony, Isabella spent last summer as a research intern at Germany's Max Planck Institute for Human Cognitive and Brain Science, where she studied the impact of empathic stress on children's cognitive functioning. She hopes in time "to serve as a clinical provider of mental-health treatments, especially to groups that are typically underserved," she says, "such as young people who are incarcerated or otherwise involved in the legal system."

"I am really excited to learn more about the different ways to create an impact in the world of mental health and to become a skilled, empathetic, impact-driven treatment provider and researcher."

Responding to Violence with an Artist's Life

A bullet to the spine in a 2009 gang attack in his home country left Melvin Gomez (El Salvador, UWC Red Cross Nordic, Ringling College of Art + Design '22) confined to a wheelchair. But he refuses to let disability confine his life.

A fine-arts student at Ringling who was named the 2021-22 Fine Arts Trustee Scholar, the college's highest honor, Melvin has become a professional artist, working from his studio in El Salvador. He has led charity initiatives and nonprofit workshops, and "as founder of the art school Brushstrokes of Hope, I dedicate time to teach," he writes. "For the coming year, I'm planning an agenda for exhibitions in El Salvador and in the U.S."

Melvin is the only survivor of the gang attack, which killed three of his best friends. "Being impacted by gang violence forced me to grow up at a very early age, and to see life realistically," he says in an article posted by the website Orato World. "It led me to understand everything is fleeting and fragile. I began feeling love, compassion, and a sense of humanity for others.

"Now, I seek to replicate my passion and share it. Along the way, I met people who extended their hand to me — to help or to offer sincere advice.

"My art allows me to share what I receive," Melvin reflects. "I want to make a difference in a country like El Salvador.... If possible, I would like my people to have the same opportunity I had. I want everyone to dare to dream. Great things can be achieved with art, including changing people's lives."

A New International House Invites Everyone In

Five Davis UWC Scholars from five nations worked last fall with Earlham College's Office of Residential Life to open I-20 House, a new residential, support and event center for international students on campus.

"When we say international, we mean every single country, including the U.S.," said Ahmed Deeb '23 (Palestine, UWC Robert Bosch College). "We are the entire world."

I-20 House was home this year to Ahmed and his co-creators of the project: Cristina Esquivel Rodriguez '24 (Costa Rica, UWC Changshu China), Adea Mirashi '25 (Kosovo, UWC Robert Bosch College), Rafael Peres '25 (Portugal, UWC-USA), and Helena Aleluya Jose '25.5 (Angola, UWC Robert Bosch College), along with an American student. By the end of 2022, the residents had hosted a number of events, from a meet-and-greet for first-year international students to a showing of every game in the FIFA World Cup.

The house is also a place where international students can find support and companionship. "We want to make the resources that are available to international students more visible," Ahmed said. "If they feel homesick or need help, this is a space where everyone can come and ask questions."

"There's a big distinction between the international and domestic students on campus," Adea Mirashi said. "We are starting to change the divide slowly and sustainably, with recreative events."

"Our work is defined by three words," added Rafael Peres, "cooperation, support and representation. Everyone on campus was just really supportive about our idea."

"The I-20 House is a great example of students bringing forward a strong proposal for enhancing campus life," said Shane Peters, the associate vice president of Student Life and director of Residence Life.

"There are a lot of expectations for the house," Esquivel Rodriguez observed. "We want to make a difference."

Guiding Environmental Action in Denmark

In her home nation's national Ministry of Environment, Nina Porst (Denmark, UWC Red Cross Nordic, Macalester College '08) is head of the Division for Sustainable Environment and Production, supervising a 20-member team that is working to address the complex issue of "forever chemicals," per- and polyfluoroalkyl substances (PFAS), in her nation's environment.

After college, Nina worked as a student assistant at the Danish Ministry of Foreign Affairs and completed a master's program in European affairs. She then held various jobs in the Danish Parliament and worked for the Ministry of Taxation, before becoming the Ministry of Environment's team lead on air and noise pollution.

This was "a completely new area," Nina notes, "working with dedicated experts, many with natural-science backgrounds, and under a newly elected government starting its term on quite a green mandate. We worked hard on tightening the environmental zones (no old diesel vehicles in the center of the large cities), and on a new innovative regulatory scheme requiring buyers of property to replace or scrap old wood-burning stoves."

She was named to her current position in late 2020. "The past year has been particularly busy, as my unit was tasked with carrying out the overall coordination for managing the growing problems with PFAS, water-repellant chemicals used in many everyday products, sometimes referred to as forever chemicals because they do not decompose.

"I feel so fortunate to have gained the perspective on the world and the planet that no doubt I got from attending UWC and Macalester," she concludes, "and as a result I feel it is my duty to try to make a little bit of an impact for the greater good."

Pushing for Positive Change in Health Care

A passion for community health led Ritika Purbey (India, UWC South East Asia, Johns Hopkins University '23) to intern at Savonix, a technology-driven neurocognitive testing company in San Francisco, and to work last summer at the Office for Healthcare Transformation in Singapore's Ministry of Health, where she led projects to improve health outcomes.

"The UWC values I was exposed to empowered me to believe that I have the ability and responsibility to create a positive difference," Ritika writes. That conviction blended, she says, "with my belief that health care is a fundamental human right."

Ritika has done research at Johns Hopkins on social and infectious disease epidemiology, and she worked as a research assistant at both the Saw Swee Hock School of Public Health in Singapore and JHU's Bloomberg School of Public Health, where she published several peer-reviewed articles. This year she was also co-president of Women in Business at JHU, and of the service organization Advocates of Baltimore Community Health.

"After graduation, I will be joining McKinsey and Company as a business analyst in the Washington, D.C. office," Ritika writes. "I am excited to learn from some of the most experienced and influential global executives. Ultimately, I hope to apply my knowledge and experience to drive efficiencies in the health-care industry and create a more accessible and equitable world for all."

A Cartoonist Helps the World Laugh It Off

Over a million people subscribe to The New Yorker, and since 2017 the world's top showcase for humorous cartoons has carried dozens of gently wry and truly funny contributions by Maddie Dai (New Zealand, Li Po Chun UWC, Middlebury College '14).

"I tried jobs where I was not contractually obligated to make jokes and found it even harder to stay motivated," she writes from her home in Wellington, where she's also an award-winning graphic designer, and an art director who has developed visual campaigns for clients such as UNICEF, Oxfam, and Airbnb.

Yet it's her cartooning that most stands out, with images such as a knight mansplaining to Joan of Arc how to handle a sword, or Batman reminding the police commissioner that he doesn't do rising sea levels.

"I find it satisfying," she says, "to have a way to greet the bizarre and disturbing news of the day with something that says, 'This is ludicrous! Chaos! Absurd!' The satirical form allows us to punch up, using ridicule, anger, and humor as a means to clarify a moral position by pointing out the absurdity of the status quo. Often, though, I am not capable of such lofty aims, and settle for a joke about petty marital woes or minor office-based grievances.

"UWC helped me understand how vast and complicated the world is," she recalls. At college in Vermont, "I became a quiet student of the strange American customs, rituals and systems. But in broad terms, observation is key to cartooning — often, you're pointing out the things we all experience but rarely put into words."

Making a Difference for the College Community

It's a challenge just to sum up everything that Wiktorja Pedryc (Poland, UWC Robert Bosch College, Lake Forest College '24) has accomplished on campus — so far.

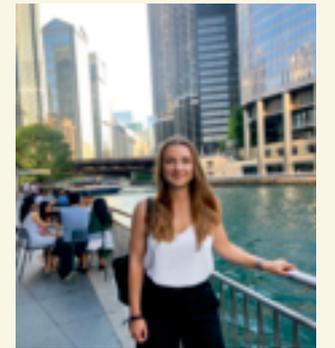

She's a research assistant in two professor-led labs, formerly three. She was a First Connection Orientation Mentor, and part of the college's Diversity, Equity and Inclusion Presidential Advisory Group. She has been treasurer and an executive board member of the college's first-aid organization. Wiktorja co-founded the Slavic Ancestry Organization on campus; she volunteers in the college's Title IX office, and this year she has been president of Lake Forest's chapter of It's On Us, an organization devoted to sexual misconduct prevention and survivor advocacy.

And at a college where international students make up 16% of the student body, she has served as "residential international senator," vice president, and president of student government.

"I think the biggest motivation I have from campus involvement are the connections I make with people, that I likely would not have made otherwise," Wiktorja reflects. "I enjoy challenges because they force me to think creatively about solutions, and allow me to achieve a concrete goal, to improve the quality of campus life."

Wiktorja became an "international senator" in student government during her very first term at Lake Forest and was elected vice president in fall 2021, eventually becoming president. This year she stepped away from student government to focus more on research and on working with It's On Us, focusing on sexual misconduct prevention and consent awareness.

"I gain satisfaction from peers, staff members and faculty telling me that what I do is helpful and makes a difference," she notes. "I also hope that the programs I started remain a tradition."

Bringing Vibrant Equity to the Spice Trade

“On a trip to the Indian state of Andhra Pradesh in February 2017, Sana Javeri Kadri, right out of college and working in marketing at Bi-Rite, San Francisco’s beloved specialty-grocery chain, was introduced to a turmeric so flavorful and nuanced, it changed the direction of her life,” says a narrative at Martha Stewart’s website.

To Sana (India, UWC Adriatic, Pomona College ‘16), this “golden, glowing powder, packed with zesty, floral notes, was nothing short of a revelation,” the article says. It had been produced by an Indian farmer, using age-old farming methods that involved raising turmeric among a diversity of crops. Sana decided to use her $3,000 tax refund to buy about 700 pounds of the farmer’s turmeric.

“It sold out on her website within days, and a partnership was formed,” says marthastewart.com.

Today, Sana is CEO of Diaspora, a California-based company that buys turmeric and six other spices directly from several small farms in India, paying an average of six times more than commodity prices. Diaspora requires that growers convert from conventional farming to regenerative and sustainable agriculture. It also provides health insurance to the farmers and laborers who work to produce its spices.

In India, “thousands of years of indigenous spice-growing knowledge have been buried by an exploitative spice trade that removed farmers’ stories from the equation,” Sana told marthastewart.com. In contrast, she said, “this is a spice company by us, and for us.” She recently published her Diaspora Cookbook, and offers online cooking classes — “with lots of spices” — through her Club Masala.

“The Voice of Youth Should Be Controversial”

For more than two years, Morolake Taiwo Tomoye (USA/Nigeria, UWC-USA, Lehigh University '23) has advocated for the economic empowerment of women and girls as a UN youth representative for a Nigerian NGO, the Center for Women Studies and Intervention. At a United Nations conference on its Sustainable Development Goals last October, “Rolake” writes, “I presented on the history of women’s representation in governance in Nigeria and the struggle to pass the Gender and Equal Opportunities Bill. We emphasized that the goal of gender parity in decision-making is critical, and a true embodiment of the spirit of interconnectedness of the SDGs.

“We should understand what the community needs and what the women need from their perspectives,” she adds, “instead of going straight in and doing what we think is good for them. They have a voice.”

At Lehigh, Rolake has focused her academic work on computer science, economics and global studies, and she has served on the board of the African Student Association. “I’m very passionate about ASA,” she notes. As a summer intern with the university’s Iacocca Internship Program, she worked with a math research institute in Rwanda on developing a mini-search engine for finding published research articles.

Rolake also spoke last fall at the UN General Assembly, as part of a panel on academia responding to global challenges.

“I believe that the voice of youth should be controversial,” she told the gathering. “We should challenge conventional wisdom by introducing fresh thoughts and ideas. Ask uncomfortable questions — and then ask them again.”

PRESIDENTS' PERSPECTIVES

“Earlham College is thrilled to have over 93 Davis United World College graduates enrolled this academic year. ...

I have been struck by how well prepared for Earlham, known for its challenging teaching, they are, and how wholeheartedly they engage in and contribute to the Earlham community, as students and as alumni. It is not possible for me to describe what an important and valued part of the college community they are. ...

“Earlham is committed to intentionally creating space for students to explore, discover, engage, discern, and create, with the purpose of creating leaders for the future. Davis

UWC Scholars arrive ready to fully step into these opportunities, always adding their own special creativity and energy. ... The Earlham campus and Richmond and Wayne County communities are enriched by the contributions of our Davis UWC Scholars. Their involvement in performing arts, athletics, clubs, leadership positions, research opportunities, and national and global issues contributes to the vibrancy and overall quality of the Earlham educational experience for all our students; and for that we are extremely grateful.”

Fighting for Accessibility in Mental Health Care

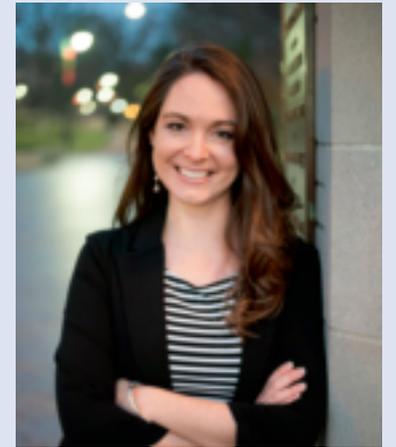

Dr. Laura Wallace (USA, UWC Adriatic, Carleton College '07) founded, owns, and runs Twin Lakes Counseling, a psychotherapy group practice that employs 25 therapists in Federal Way, Washington.

“The mental health crisis is intense,” she writes. “We are an insurance-based group practice that serves low-income populations in our community by taking state insurance. We have a diverse staff that represents the community we serve, and we work hard to maintain our sense of idealism, even with clinician burnout at an all-time high and enormous challenges that we’re faced with every day.

“Every decision we’ve made has been to increase accessibility,” she says. “The fact that we take insurance at all — particularly Medicaid — drastically increases overhead costs and lowers reimbursement per session, but that was one of the very first decisions we made.

“To me, the thing that makes owning a group practice worth all the stress, risk, quick decisions, and struggle is the number of people we are able to serve. As an individual practitioner, I would be able to help maybe 30 clients a week; as a group, in 2023, we averaged 322 sessions per week. At any one point, we’re caring for more than 600 clients, and 30% of those clients are on Medicaid — a population that in Washington state at least has remarkably few options when it comes to mental health care.

“There is so much need, and so much gridlock, within the health-care system,” she concludes. “But ultimately, making therapy accessible is the biggest goal, and it’s a fight we’re willing to take on.”

PRESIDENTS' PERSPECTIVES

“Colby’s partnership with the Davis UWC Scholars Program is fundamental to our ability to ensure that the most talented students from around the world have access to this remarkable undergraduate education. Davis UWC Scholars are truly exceptional, and they give as much to Colby as they gain from being here. Discussions are richer and analysis is deeper because of the breadth of their perspectives and experiences. The Davis family’s vision and generosity make it possible for Colby to educate future leaders who will go on to make important contributions throughout their lives, and we could not be more grateful.”

Speaking Up for the International Community

To better connect international students with each other and the whole campus community,

Meher Kovoor (India, UWC Changshu China, Clark University '23) last year helped create Clark's new International Student Social Support Group. "We wanted to have the international community feel more familiar," she writes, "one that all our constituents saw themselves in and felt supported by."

After studying remotely as a sophomore, Meher returned to campus eager to get involved, and won election as an international representative to the Undergraduate Student Council. In talking with fellow students, she writes, "I was made aware of the need for better intercultural understanding and the need to strengthen the administrative support available to students."

"Working alongside my co-representative, we realized we had the common goal of creating an affinity space for our community to share our grievances, get to know each other, and continue to foster a sense of community. It is hard to make sense of your experience or to know how to solve the difficulties you are facing if you do not know many people in your community."

Reelected this year to the Student Council, Meher has focused on improving orientation week for international students, and connecting them with resources relating to immigration and mental health. She was also vice president of the South Asian Student Association, having been its interorganizational chair last year.

"While it was daunting to consider representing the international community," she notes, "the value I believe the community has to the broader Clark community made me want to be at the forefront of building community through the same meaningful cultural engagement central to my UWC experience."

PRESIDENTS' PERSPECTIVES

“We are honored to be a partner with such an impactful program as the Davis UWC Scholars Program. The students that come to the College of Idaho through this program bring an incredibly rich academic foundation, but maybe more importantly, they bring a diverse worldview combined with an ability to appreciate the value of dialog and the importance of finding common ground. It is amazing for us to have 81 different countries represented on our campus in Idaho, and we find more and more domestic students are choosing to attend the College of Idaho because of our partnership with the Davis UWC Scholars Program.”

GRADUATES IN ACTION

Designing to Bring Cambodians Together

Just a few months before the COVID pandemic struck in 2020, Vireak They (Cambodia, UWC South East Asia, University of Oklahoma '18) founded Osmosis Architects in Phnom Penh, his home nation's capital. Having persisted through the challenges of the global emergency, Osmosis has grown from an initial team of three to eight. It has a number of projects in the works — and a guiding vision.

“As a team,” Vireak writes, “our idea is that we want to design buildings for positive social impacts, which means that all of our architectural designs will have more social spaces for the public to meet and share ideas. We are trying to open up spaces for the community and the public, so that we could enrich social interaction between our people in Cambodia.”

Vireak is especially proud of his firm's education-related design projects. He hopes to “better the Cambodian educational sector by designing new creative spaces and campuses.”

Among Osmosis Architects' current projects is designing a new small town in the country's northeast, near the Laos and Vietnam borders. The town plan features a community mall, educational campuses, and a large central park.

“As a lead architect, I introduce so many ideas in the design works in order to make Cambodia a better place to live, work and play in,” Vireak writes. “The idea of becoming a positive force has inspired me to stay stronger and motivated me to fight harder to make the world a better place.”

Linking NGOs and Students Internationally

In just her first two years at Northwestern University, Sara Kurniawan '25 (USA, UWC South East Asia) has found a way to make a multinational positive impact. She and a fellow student founded Explorate, an initiative that connects young adults with opportunities to volunteer with NGOs across the world.

For NGOs, Sara writes, “our platform provides more access to talents and a chance to broaden their networks, and connections with other organizations, in their respective fields. We help increase volunteer traffic by featuring their volunteering programs and creating communication channels worldwide to facilitate a mutually supportive NGO community.”

Explorate got its start in autumn 2021 — and by late 2022, its Facebook page was highlighting opportunities to volunteer with NGOs in Nigeria, Uganda, and Kenya. Last fall the initiative hosted a pilot expedition that took eight Northwestern students to Costa Rica to work with LAST (Latin American Sea Turtles), a nonprofit that focuses on sea turtle conservation and mangrove restoration.

“I certainly intend for Explorate to expand beyond Northwestern,” says Sara, who is studying computer science, political science, and design at the university. “Our vision is to build a robust database of impact-driven NGOs worldwide, so we may feature their volunteering programs and volunteers can discover them easily.

“Explorate believes in a vision of social and environmental change through cultivating a culture of empathy,” she adds, “and we believe this is through experiences of cross-cultural communication. With each expedition and volunteering opportunity, we hope that volunteers and NGOs alike can benefit from learning from one another’s experiences — practicing empathy and kindness naturally.”

PRESIDENTS' PERSPECTIVES

“The goals of the Davis United World College Scholars Program — to prepare and educate leaders from around the world, promote cross-cultural understanding, and provide opportunities for international engagement — have never been more vital. To address global challenges like the climate crisis, armed conflicts, polarization, and resource scarcity, we need future leaders who hold international worldviews as foundational components of their lived experiences. With their unique perspectives, leadership skills, and dedication to serve, Davis UWC College Scholars enrich the educational experience for all Yale students. I am grateful to the Davis United World Scholars Program for supporting these exceptional members of our campus community who contribute so much to make Yale University a place of multicultural identity, inclusion, and acceptance.”

PRESIDENTS' PERSPECTIVES

“As I enter my second year as president of Colorado College, I am continually in awe of the students who choose to come to CC, their commitment to academics, to the campus, and to each other, as well as the active roles that they play on campus. I was drawn to Colorado College because it has always been bold, courageous, and committed. And the world today needs CC students and grads, including our Davis UWC Scholar students, to help create a more just world. Davis UWC Scholars are an important part of our student body. They seek out leadership roles, such as being International Student Orientation mentors for the new international students who arrived in the fall, to help ease their transition to campus.”

GRADUATES IN ACTION

A Rhodes Scholar Eyes Humanity's Future

As a Rhodes Scholar at the University of Oxford, Avital Balwit (USA, UWC-USA, University of Virginia '21) has been spending the last two years pursuing a graduate degree in philosophy as she studies how humanity can prevent its own extinction.

“Oxford is an ideal place to study my areas of focus: existential risks — catastrophes that could cause the extinction of the human race, and how to avoid them — and global priorities — how to prioritize amongst global problems and means of solving them,” Avital told the University of Virginia's online publication UVA Today. “The greatest number of talented researchers in this still-small field ... teach at Oxford, which houses the Future of Humanity Institute and the Global Priorities Institute.”

“Avital is a true intellectual who cares deeply about ideas and their impact on the world,” said Michael J. Smith, UVA's Sorensen Professor of Political and Social Thought. “Her interests range beyond a single discipline, yet she approaches all her work with a distinct combination of depth, skepticism and humility.”

“Always superbly prepared, she raised the level of all our political and social thought seminars by asking probing questions, and by responding to the comments of others in ways that deepened everyone's understanding.”

After Oxford, Avital said she hopes to attend law school, then to work as a legislative aide in the U.S. government.

“I firmly believe that we can build a more collaborative world order that places an explicit value on the long-term survival of humanity,” she said, “and that if we do, the next generations will grow up in a more stable, just and prosperous world.”

PRESIDENTS' PERSPECTIVES

“Every student at Middlebury enriches our community with their life experience and perspective, but our Davis United World College Scholars offer something extra: a direct understanding of the power that students from different backgrounds can bring to any cause. Davis UWC students arrive on campus with a desire and motivation to make the world a better place, and they inspire all of us to share in their commitment. We are grateful to our Davis UWC Scholars for all they contribute in their time at Middlebury and proud of all they accomplish in the world as Middlebury alumni. They are part of the soul of Middlebury, and we treasure them.”

PRESIDENTS' PERSPECTIVES

“As we launch our 15th year of hosting Davis United World College Scholars Program students, we continue to celebrate their significant contributions to our community. Fourteen new scholars joined our ranks this fall, and they are already making their presence felt. ... Meanwhile, our senior scholars continue to be leaders across campus — in the International Student Union, in the Student Government Association, and in other areas — and to distinguish themselves intellectually and socially. ... As ever, our partnership with the Davis UWC Scholars Program brings such productive and positive student energy to our campus. ... As Skidmore continues to cultivate a global-minded young citizenry eager to creatively embrace the challenges and opportunities of our interconnected world, we remain committed to the Davis United World College Scholars Program as a cornerstone of our commitment to undergraduate international education.”

Finding a Path in Politics and Policy

“As a Taiwanese person, I was born into politics,” writes Claire Chang (UWC Atlantic College, Pomona College '23). Politics, she notes, “brings immense pride in my people, but also causes unbearable existential fear: fear of Taiwan’s future, fear of missiles raining down in Taiwanese waters.”

Already, Claire — who also goes by Claire Tiunn, the Taiwanese version of her family name — has done much to put her interests into action. Last summer, she writes, “I wanted to view foreign policy from across the Pacific Ocean, which led to my internship with the Pacific Forum, an American research institute based in Honolulu. I also held a research assistantship with Professor Mietek Boduszynski through the Summer Undergraduate Internship Program (SURP); we conducted a six-week research project focused on U.S.-Kosovo relations.”

Claire’s work at the Pacific Forum led to her writing an op-ed that called for extending conscripted military service in Taiwan, along with creating a Taiwanese Territorial Defense Force modeled on Ukraine’s resilient TDF.

“I attended the ASEAN Regional Forum on Women and Youth, Peace and Security as a participant, US-ROK-Japan Trilateral Strategic Dialogue as a notetaker and a tabletop exercise participant,” she writes. “Most recently, I was invited back to Honolulu on an all-expenses-paid trip to the U.S.-Taiwan Deterrence and Defense Dialogue.”

Through all this, “I have found a possible career path that is my ikigai,” Claire concludes. “Ikigai is a combination of what you love, what you are good at, what you can be paid for, and what the world needs.”

PRESIDENTS' PERSPECTIVES

“The Davis UWC Scholars at Brandeis University enrich our campus in many ways. ... Their leadership and involvement on campus highlights diversity and cultural connections throughout our community. ... In addition to cultural clubs on campus, our Davis UWC Scholars are actively involved in other organizations that promote peer mentorship, volunteering and advocacy. For example, some of them are members of the Brandeis Waltham Group, our student organization dedicated to volunteering at Brandeis and in the surrounding Waltham community. Several scholars are also involved in peer mentor programs, tutors, and undergraduate research opportunities with faculty at Brandeis to further education and academic excellence.

“Several are also members of Brandeis University's esteemed Wien International Scholarship Program.... When students, staff, and faculty have a chance to sit down and talk to a Davis UWC Scholar, they learn about someone who sees the world through a unique lens. They have deeply considered their place in the world and routinely challenge the perspectives of their fellow students along the way. Brandeis University is pleased to continue as a partner institution with the Davis UWC Scholars, as their impact and involvement on campus is invaluable to the institution.”

RONALD D. LIEBOWITZ, PRESIDENT
Brandeis University

PRESIDENTS' PERSPECTIVES

“At Wellesley, we strive to prepare students to be global citizens who will make a difference in the world, which is why we remain a committed partner to the Davis United World College Scholars Program. This program, dedicated to serving as an engine for intercultural exchange, helps future leaders develop not only a multicultural perspective, but the skills required to connect with those with different backgrounds, talents, and experiences.

“Davis UWC Scholars have been making their mark on Wellesley for more than 20 years. They enrich our community in so many ways, and bring their multitude of talents and perspectives to their work as student scholars. We are grateful for their many contributions to Wellesley, and know that they will bring what they have learned at the college into the world, to drive positive change in whatever career they chose.”

Working to Nourish Indonesia's Millions

Having studied dietetics at the University of Florida's Food Science and Nutrition Department, Nurul Azma Ahmad Tarmizi '17 (Indonesia, UWC Red Cross Nordic) today plays a pivotal role in developing a public-private partnership that aims to reduce malnutrition in her home nation.

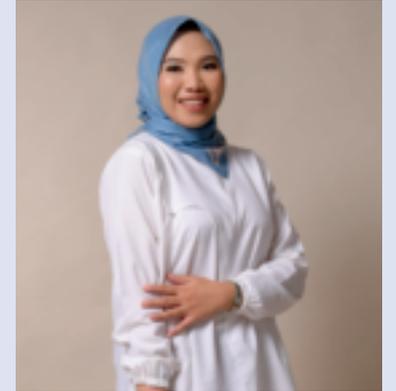

"I am talking to policy makers, development partners, and other nongovernment stakeholders concerning nutrition that will impact more than a quarter billion people," Nurul reports.

When she returned to Indonesia after graduation, "I came unprepared," Nurul says. She had learned about diseases common in the U.S. — but Indonesia's health challenges were different, centering on undernutrition and "hidden hunger," or micronutrient deficiencies.

"The major nutrition problems here were foreign to me," she recalls.

Today she works in the Ministry of National Development Planning, playing a key role as she assists the Deputy Minister for Human Development, Society and Cultural Affairs in a public-private partnership campaign, Scaling Up Nutrition Focal Point.

"I was able to explore many things as a Davis UWC Scholar," Nurul says. "Now, I will continue building my career in nutrition policy and enjoy the beauty of my home country."

PRESIDENTS' PERSPECTIVES

“Methodist University advances purposefully with a strong commitment toward the internationalization of our campus in our second decade as a Davis United World College Scholars institution. ... Davis UWC Scholars at MU enhance our educational programs by sharing their experiences, knowledge, and hope for a better future. MU counts on these future leaders to continue sharing their determined spirit and encouraging the growth of interest in courses related to social justice, international studies, law, education, and the environment. They have fostered student interest in working toward a more peaceful world and have taught all of us something about overcoming cultural and ethnic barriers. In addition, Davis UWC Scholars continue to be some of our very best students at Methodist University. Their graduation rate, as a group, is the highest of any group at the university. Their presence enhances the learning experience, inside the classroom and out, for everyone. Davis UWC students further global understanding at MU!”

Sharing International Stories of Resilience

To bring to life the everyday experiences of international students for everyone at her university, Marien Emilia López-Medina (Nicaragua, Pearson College UWC, University of Oklahoma '23) has written more than 145 articles for the student-produced OU Daily. The journalism major won the 2022-23 Gary McKinney Memorial Scholarship from her college at OU, for “significant community impact.”

“The OU/Norman community and the OU international community became my journalism classroom,” Marien writes. “The OU Daily equipped me with the professional tools to write about marginalized groups on campus from a place of solidarity.” Reporting for the newspaper, she adds, “became a safe place to speak about the struggles of being foreign in a predominately white space.”

OU has the largest enrollment of Davis UWC Scholars in the U.S., with 304 scholars from 109 countries. “López-Medina wants to make it clear that ... each student has a personal story worth hearing,” said a 2020 blog post from the David L. Boren College of International Studies.

That pandemic year was especially difficult for students from other nations — and, the post noted, “López-Medina covered the effect of pandemic travel restrictions on international students, sudden ICE policy changes, and international student involvement with Black Lives Matter protests.”

“It was then that I started using my skills in writing and other languages to share the testimonials of people,” Marien told the university newsletter Inside OU 2021.

Because she comes from a conflict zone, and a nation with an authoritarian government, resilience has become “a keyword that now defines my journalist identity,” Marien notes. The Davis UWC scholarship has allowed her, she adds, “to provide more chances for the people here from the United States to open their minds to different cultures and different people.”

GRADUATES IN ACTIONOpening More Doors to Higher Education

At Yale University, Jonas Kavaliauskas '21 (Lithuania, UWC Adriatic) and a fellow Lithuanian also studying in the U.S. founded Academic Buddy USA, a company that provided resources, mentorship, and support to Lithuanian high-school students seeking to study abroad. The startup became Atlas Academy, a company based in Vilnius that Jonas leads as CEO, and now provides consulting and coaching for students, mostly European, who aim to apply to colleges in the U.S., the UK, France, Germany, and Holland.

“My hope is that many of these people, after receiving the best possible education in the U.S. or Western Europe,” he writes, “will realize that Lithuania itself and the wider Lithuanian community have aided them tremendously along their way, and will look to give back.”

Jonas continues to lead the business in 2023 while pursuing a year’s study for a master’s degree in global affairs as a Schwarzman Scholar, at Tsinghua University in Beijing. “I would like,” he writes, “to bring Atlas Academy to China (interesting things happening in the education market over there), help Lithuanian businesses build deeper ties with Chinese enterprises, and improve investment flows both ways.”

Jonas describes his “three great professional passions” as education, entrepreneurship, and investment management. So far, he considers his involvement with students through Atlas Academy to be “my most meaningful and impactful work.

“Most of them ... would not have gotten as far, made as much of their time, as they have while working with us,” he reflects. “And I do think their future achievements and contributions will echo far and wide.”

PRESIDENTS' PERSPECTIVES

“Davis UWC Scholars bring to their studies an independence of mind and spirit that makes them stand out. They are comfortable with difference, open to change, ready to grasp opportunities, and they are entrepreneurial in their approach to making change happen. They think globally and bring their open-minded outlook to the classroom and residence hall, sparking reflection in their peers and highlighting the possibility that things do not have to be only one way — the world could be otherwise. This is the kind of divergent — perhaps even disruptive — thinking that engenders change, and if we are to counter the challenges of the future, we need our youth to think more disruptively. ... Davis UWC Scholars are an enrichment to our classrooms and campus community, and we greatly appreciate the Davis Foundation's support for Davis UWC Scholars at Pomona College.”

PRESIDENTS' PERSPECTIVES

“At the University of Oklahoma, all we do is driven by our fundamental purpose — we change lives — three small but powerful words intrinsic to who we are and what we aim to be. The more time I spend with our Davis UWC Scholars, the more I have a profound sense of their passion for the same. Their focus on the greater good and the benefit of others is remarkable. The Davis UWC Scholars Program brings to OU students who are already well on their way to a life of meaning and impact, yet we are delighted to help develop this in them even further. I cannot overstate our gratefulness for Shelby Davis’s and Phil Geier’s vision to invest in the future through these immensely talented and idealistic students. Their positive impact is felt far and wide at our university.”

Empowering Refugees with New Language Access

Abobakar Sediq Miakhel (Afghanistan, UWC Atlantic College, University of Rochester '26) is co-founder of AILEM, a free online app that provides language education — through learning vocabulary and phrases, reading stories, and interacting with other learners — to help refugees and asylum seekers integrate and communicate in a new country.

“This fall, I was awarded with the European Commission’s Peace Ambassador Scholarship that allowed me to attend the 2022 One Young World Conference,” Abobakar writes. “A year after the Taliban took control of my beloved country, I stood on the stage of the conference’s opening ceremony and raised Afghanistan’s flag proudly.

“The event gave me a platform to share about my work with conflict prevention, especially the AILEM project, where I could raise awareness about the importance of rights and education for refugees like myself.”

AILEM’s website says the app was “created by refugees, for refugees, to have content that is relevant to the lifecycle of a refugee or asylum seeker’s journey of integrating into society.” Its core goals, the site says, are to deliver language education that (once the app is downloaded) can be accessed without the internet, “even in refugee camp,” with content that is “compiled through refugee interviews and our refugee and asylum-seeker panel.”

Participating in the One Young World Conference allowed Abobakar to “delve deeper about the use of artificial intelligence for language learning,” he says. “The accumulation of such enriching knowledge and connections I hope to use to continue to build up humanitarian projects and help people.”

PRESIDENTS' PERSPECTIVES

“Whitman College is extremely fortunate to have welcomed a record number of Davis UWC Scholars in recent years. These students add such an important and dynamic global perspective to our campus community.

Each and every Davis UWC Scholar I have had the pleasure of meeting has been incredibly impressive — these are remarkably charismatic, accomplished students with bright futures ahead of them. At a time of rapid technological, societal, environmental and economic change, the best way to address these international challenges is through the kind of collaboration and connection at which Davis UWC

Scholars consistently excel.”

GRADUATES IN ACTION

Consulting and Connecting from Johannesburg

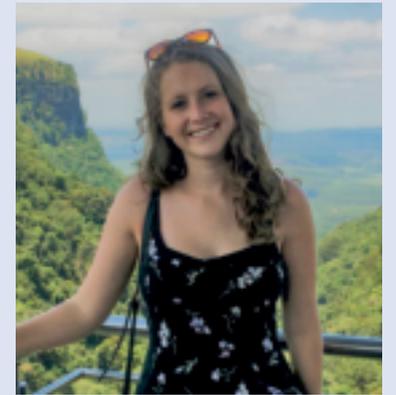

Even as she earned a master's degree in social policy and development from the University of Johannesburg, Samantha Henderson (Eswatini, Waterford Kamhlaba UWCSEA, Vassar College '20) has worked since 2021 as a social-impact analyst in Johannesburg with African Impact. The small consulting company provides investment counseling, nonprofit advising, risk assessment, and more.

Her scope of work has been broad. Among her projects, "Sam" has consulted with the Field Band Foundation on communication and marketing strategy, co-led monitoring and evaluation for the Norway-South Africa exchange program PULSE, and done research and development work for Dialogue, a South African communications company.

Having completed her master's degree last November, "I'm still with African Impact, now transitioning into full-time work with the company," she writes. "I have a passion for monitoring, evaluation and learning, a career focus which I am trying to build on through my work."

Along with her projects for the foundation and PULSE, Sam notes, "I will also be supporting the company on work related to the UNDP's ISGAP [Innovation Small Grant Aggregator Platform] programme, and a Global Environment Facility innovation challenge project implemented by the UNDP and the Global Resilience Partnership.

"The friendships I forged in my undergraduate years remain an important presence in my life," she adds, "though I may be a continent's breadth away from many of them. My UWC experiences often come up in conversations with friends and colleagues."

PRESIDENTS' PERSPECTIVES

“The most confounding challenges of our time transcend geographic borders, languages, and cultural differences; they demand global solutions and a belief in our common humanity. At Bennington, we prepare students to tackle those challenges with tireless curiosity and rigorous creativity, and inspire future generations to lead with empathy and understanding. This is the profound value of the Davis UWC Scholars Program at Bennington College. Through the program, our students are exposed to a range of perspectives and ideas, preparing them for a purpose-driven life committed to working to make the world more beautiful, sustainable, democratic, and just.”

PRESIDENTS' PERSPECTIVES

“Lake Forest College’s Davis UWC Scholars continue to elevate our entire campus community. This impressive cohort challenges us to evolve and improve, something we are glad to do as a student-centered institution. We are proud to have over 200 Davis UWC Scholars currently enrolled, and are heartened by each and every scholar’s choice to select Lake Forest as their university home.”

PRESIDENTS' PERSPECTIVES

“College of the Atlantic believes that experience is a cornerstone of education. The entire COA community — students, staff, and faculty — learn through personal experience and through the experiences of others, both inside and outside the walls of academia. In that kind of learning environment, diversity of student experience isn't just nice to have, it is absolutely core to the mission and vision of the college. The Davis UWC Scholars Program is a primary engine of diversity of experience, and is therefore core to who we are at College of the Atlantic.”

PRESIDENTS' PERSPECTIVES

"I am delighted to express my gratitude to the Davis UWC Scholars Program for its institutional partnership and the generous support provided to UWC graduates who come to Harvey Mudd College for their undergraduate education. The diverse young people we educate today will be tomorrow's science and technology leaders in countries around the world. Their discoveries and new ideas will advance the frontiers of knowledge and create a brighter future for us all. The support from the Davis UWC Scholars Program is important for all we seek to accomplish in the classroom and laboratory to prepare students to reach their potential in a globalized world. We are proud to be part of the distinguished group of partner institutions. The Davis UWC Scholars Program is a treasure, and its influence is felt far and wide."

PRESIDENTS' PERSPECTIVES

“The University of Pennsylvania is privileged to once again partner with the Davis UWC Scholars Program for the current academic year. This program continues to have a transformative impact at Penn, providing exceptional international students with boundless opportunities to be active and engaged global citizens. Furthermore, the unique personal stories and traditions that they share with our community do much to enhance the cultural vibrancy of our entire campus.

“Penn takes great pride in being a diverse and inclusive institution, one where the different perspectives of our students help to contribute to their holistic development. Our partnership with the program goes a long way to ensure that we can uphold this principle and promote an essential intercultural exchange of ideas. As Penn’s Davis UWC Scholars pursue their ambitions — both inside and away from the classroom — our university remains fortunate to be a second home for so many students from around the world.”

Applying to Become a Partner School

The Davis UWC Scholars Program reviews requests on an annual basis from colleges and universities interested in becoming partner schools. To be considered, a letter of request from the institution’s president should be submitted, explaining in detail why their school would be a good candidate for the program. An important prerequisite for a candidate school is to have a proven track record of successfully recruiting graduates from United World College schools at the time of application. It’s essential that applicant schools are in alignment with the Davis UWC Scholars Program’s key goal of the internationalization of the U.S. undergraduate experience by building clusters of globally aware UWC graduates on their domestic campuses. Letters may be submitted at any time during the academic year, but no later than May 31, as decisions are finalized by August each year.

The Davis UWC Scholars Program makes grants to institutions only — not to individual students. Grants are awarded based on financial need to eligible United World College graduates enrolled at one of the partner schools.

How Other Philanthropists Can Invest

Philanthropists who want to help bring the world to U.S. campuses—especially their own alma maters—are invited to become a part of the Davis UWC Scholars Program. Philanthropist Shelby Davis created the program 23 years ago, and since then it has grown to become the world’s largest international scholarship program for undergraduate study.

Ninety-nine American colleges and universities have been selected to partner with this major philanthropic investment to transform American campuses by providing scholarships to students from more than 165 countries to attend these schools for their undergraduate degrees.

The scholarships are awarded to students who are proven winners. As 15- or 16-year-olds, they won national competitions in their home countries that allowed them to complete their last two years of high school at one of the premier United World College schools. They have demonstrated their leadership, they are informed and engaged in world issues, and they have been admitted to some of the finest institutions of higher learning in the U.S. Everyone at these campuses—students, faculty, staff, and the surrounding community—benefits from this exposure and the global networking that will inevitably link our country’s future leaders with those of many other nationalities.

The Davis United World College Scholars Program is a genuine partnership—Davis philanthropy provides need-based aid for up to four years of undergraduate study to each of the partner schools. Grant funds are awarded to our partner schools in support of their own financial aid awards for individual students and never in direct support of particular beneficiaries. As partner schools are expected to meet each of their scholars’ full demonstrated need, these scholarship packages are often quite substantial—making your additional philanthropy most welcome.

Other philanthropists have already chosen to participate. They have invested in a proven and exciting global program by co-funding a portion of these scholars at their alma maters or at other partner schools of particular interest to them. This opportunity exists for you as well. Share a naming opportunity for a scholar and their four-year undergraduate degree. Your philanthropy, in concert with Davis philanthropy and your favorite school, will help create a three-way partnership for a better world.
